YOUR TELEPHONE LINE IS ABOUT TO BECOME A LIFELINE.

We're the United Jewish Appeal, and we'll be phoning you on Sunday, October 29 to ask for contributions. We'll be telling you about Soviet Jews who are finally leaving the Soviet Union and how you can help them out.

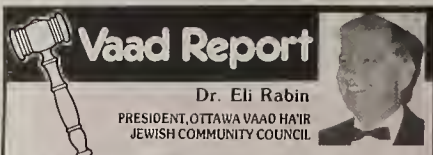

And about fellow Jews in our own community who need your help. All rely on contributions generated by our phone calls. To you, it's just a telephone line, but to others it's a lifeline. Please, don't cut them off.

Vaad Report

Dr. Eli Rabin
PRESIDENT, OTTAWA VAAD HA'RABIM
JEWISH COMMUNITY COUNCIL

UNITED JEWISH APPEAL

We have reached the 50% mark in our campaign. The initial results are encouraging and if we continue at the present rate of increase we will be able to reach our target of $3,800,000. It is absolutely essential for the viability of programs within our community that the campaign be a success. Please help and be generous.

THE JEWISH DAY CARE CENTRE

The Jewish Community Centre has launched the Jewish Day Care program at the Broadview Campus site. The Director of the Program is Lisa James. Initial reports indicate that it will be a highly successful initiative and we encourage Jewish families in need of Day-Care Services to contact the Jewish Community Centre for information. A great deal of effort and investment have gone into this program and the community congratulates Ron Boro and Paula Speevak-Sadowski for their hard work in making the Day Care Centre a reality. I should like to point out that the Community owes a debt of gratitude to all those who made major financial commitments for the purchase of the building at 831 Broadview to enable the community to house the Day Care Centre.

"A JEWISH DAY HIGH SCHOOL"

As reported previously in the Bulletin a meeting was held (just prior to Rosh Hashana) at which Rabbi Irwin Witte (Executive Director, Toronto Bureau of Jewish Education) and Jerry Cohen (Principal, Joseph Wolinsky Collegiate) outlined their experiences with the establishment and the subsequent operation of a Jewish Day High School. As a growing community, Ottawa is acquiring the population base which will be able to provide the requisite number of students for the establishment and the continued viability of such a school. The Vaad, of course, is committed to the provision of excellence in Jewish education at all levels. There is a massive amount of organizational work to be done in order to realize such a dream and to that end the Chairperson of the High School Sub-Committee (Dr. Maureen Molot) will be contacting numerous people to solicit organizational support for this project. Many meetings will be necessary to study the financial implications, the organizational structure, and the feasibility of providing this type of Jewish education at the secondary school level.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

From November 14-19 the General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations will be meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio. This meeting represents an opportunity for representatives of all Jewish Communities of North America to meet and discuss every facet of Jewish life in our communities. Numerous workshops are held which deal with: problems of the Jewish Elderly, Jewish Education, Recreation Facilities for Jewish Communities, Israel-Diaspora Relations, Fundraising, Soviet Jewish Emigration, etc. etc. We would like to encourage members of the Ottawa Jewish community to join the professional staff, officers of the community and community-student representatives in making the Ottawa delegation numerically strong.

APPOINTMENTS

Myra Aronson and Roz Kanigsberg have both been appointed to the Ottawa Talmud Torah Board as "Representatives of the Vaad." Both of the appointees have played very active roles in the community in many capacities and I am pleased that they have accepted these very important positions of responsibility. The Vaad, in its co-ordinating activities, relies very greatly on capable individuals to sit on "Boards" in the community so that close working relationships between the Vaad and its autonomous agencies are enhanced.

John Jackson has been appointed to the position of Chairman of the Council on Services to the Jewish Senior Adult. His task will be to oversee services to the elderly for the Jewish Community of Ottawa. Those services are now being expertly provided by the combined efforts of: Hillel Lodge, the Jewish Social Services Agency, and the Jewish Community Centre. With the major plans underway to provide new facilities for Hillel Lodge, the Vaad will be playing an active role in co-ordinating efforts to provide optimum programs for aging constituents.

Noreen Bosloy and Dr. Ron Vexler have been appointed as Vaad representatives to the Board of Hillel Lodge.

To Casey Swedlove: A very special "Yasher Koach" and thank you to this very special community worker. Mr. Swedlove has laboured many years for the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation and it is with great pleasure that I am able to add my own personal "thank you" for the dedication and devotion to our community. May you have many more happy years to share with your lovely wife Bess, and with your children and grandchildren. The Foundation was very pleased to be able to honor Mr. Swedlove at a Testimonial Kiddush held at the Agudath Israel Synagogue, October 21.

5750 designated year of Ivrit

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir sends Diaspora Yom Tov message

NEW YORK, (JTA) Following is Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Rosh Hashanah message to the Jews of the Diaspora for 5750.

This Rosh Hashanah our thoughts go back half a century, when our people observed the festival for the first time in the midst of World War II. In those dark days all civilized nations viewed the future with anxiety and uncertainty, but the very existence of the Jewish People was threatened by the gathering storm clouds. Millions of our people were trapped in Europe and, in the subsequent five years, they became the principal victims of an extended period of brutality and inhumanity. Throughout the Shoah they hoped desperately that the terrible war might be over quickly, and they would be spared and rescued. But it was not to be. Five more excruciating years were to pass before the forces of evil were destroyed.

Delusions of power

World War II was initiated by reckless leaders filled with territorial ambition and delusions of power. On the other hand, people whose task it was to see reality as it was, and not to indulge in wishful thinking, succumbed to violent dictates and embarked on a policy of appeasement, which proved futile, dangerous and fatal. We would like to believe that the world's leaders have learnt that such policies are a formula for war, even if one's goal is to avoid it.

Never forget heroism

In recalling the travail of our people in the Holocaust, their despair, their anguish, we must never forget their heroism in the face of massed power and destruction. We pay tribute to the valiant partisans and the 1,400,000 Jewish soldiers from many nations who served in the allied armies that ultimately crushed the aggressors and oppressors who had perpetrated the worst inhumanity to man in recorded history.

We can also not forget that our people who succeeded in fleeing the slaughterhouse of Europe were denied entry by most countries and that, in Eretz Israel, the gates were shut by the White Paper Policy of 1939.

Changed fortune

While contemplating the dark past, we rejoice at the changed fortune of the Jewish People since 1948, when the keys to our country are in our own hands and we are the masters of our own destiny here in Eretz Israel. It was difficult to create our state, and it is not easy to maintain it. But it is the unique privilege of our generation — and those who will succeed us — to build, to develop, to provide security for all the future generations of the Jewish People.

Against the background of the developments in the Middle East, the growing violence, and the genocide directed against the Christian community of Lebanon, our northern neighbour, we take pride in the fact that, in this sea of turbulence, we stand out as an island of stability and democracy.

Political maturity

In the outgoing year, two elections were held in Israel — for the Knesset and the local councils — which were great manifestations of our democracy in action. It is a tribute to the political maturity of the electorate and the nation's leaders that, despite ongoing political differences, we were able to achieve sufficient agreement to make possible the creation of the second government of national unity. This government gives us the capacity to deal, with increasing effectiveness, with internal unity and with the other challenges that face us.

We hope that in the new year we shall advance our peace initiative in co-operation with leaders of Arab countries who must realize that it is futile to continue their forty-one year state of war against Israel, that the objectives of the PLO cannot be achieved but at the expense of Israel's existence. We hope, too, that in the new year, leaders will emerge among the Arab population in our country with whom we shall be able to negotiate an agreement based upon the principles enunciated in our peace initiative.

Trepidation, expectation

We approach the New Year with trepidation and expectation that the trickle of Aliyah from the Soviet Union may turn into a blessed flood of many thousands of our brethren coming home. It is the bounden obligation of the people of Israel and of the Jewish communities in the Diaspora to leave no stone unturned to ensure that the majority of Jews leaving the Soviet Union will choose Israel as their future home, and that they will be successfully integrated into our economy and society. To ensure that, we must be in a position to provide suitable housing and jobs for all of them. We dare not, we must not permit this historic opportunity to be lost through default on our part.

Revival of Hebrew

5750 has been designated the year of Ivrit to celebrate 100 years since the revival of the Hebrew language. Let us resolve to make it a year of intensive study and Jewish education throughout the world. If Ivrit were to become the second language in every Jewish home, it would be a binding, unifying factor that would enhance the strength of Am Israel and Eretz Israel.

From Yerushalaim, the nation's capital, I send greetings and heartfelt wishes to the whole House of Israel that the New Year 5750 will bring us peace, security, a great Aliyah and economic progress. Shanah Tovah.

UJA CAMPAIGN NEWS

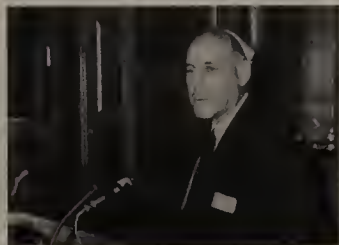

PUBLIC SERVICE DIVISION DINNER

"The litmus test of a democratic society is its treatment of minorities", said Sheila Finestone, M.P. for Mont Royal, who thanked the guest speaker, the Hon. Gerry Weiner, Secretary of State for Canada, at the recent Public Service Dinner held in Ottawa. Close to 150 attended the dinner held in the ornate setting of the Parliament Hill's West Block.

Stanley Hartt, the Chief of Staff in the Prime Minister's office, acted as Master of Ceremonies. Mr. Hartt told the audience that this was his second appearance as M.C. and true to his superb leadership skills, he kept the evening going at an efficient yet relaxed pace.

Gerry Weiner was introduced by Sandra Farber, associate chairperson. In his brief remarks, Mr.

Weiner referred to his childhood in Montreal, where he was a benefactor of many services supported by United Jewish Appeal funds. He recalled attending Hertzog Settlement House and Camp B'nai Brith in summer. He grew up with a strong sense of both community belonging and communal responsibility for one another.

During a recent Yom Tov service in his hometown synagogue, he found himself reflecting on that communal responsibility. "Can one person really make a difference? On a night like this, our attendance affirms that each individual can make a difference. It is a small commitment indeed," he added, describing his recent trip to a cemetery in Israel, where one can see all too many tombstones of the eighteen and nineteen year-old Israeli soldiers killed in action.

"This appeal," continued Mr. Weiner, "is a unifying force for our community. It is time to be together and to act together."

Mark L. Berlin, Chairman of the Public Service Division, who along with Deborah Cohen and Sandra Farber, Associate Chairpersons, organized the evening, concluded the event by asking all participants to re-affirm their commitment to the Jewish Community and to Israel by contributing generously to the United Jewish Appeal.

OCTOBER IS UJA PUBLIC SERVICE MONTH

Commentary

Cynthia Engel
EDITOR

There are those among you, Dear Readers, who are under the illusion that producing this community newspaper is a piece of cake.

Double Fudge layered, with chocolate icing, perhaps.

Black Forest, even.

Or maybe honey — with almonds.

Wrong again!

Producing the OJB&R is not a task for the faint of heart (although, at times, I suspect it is for the feeble of mind!) Putting out this bi-weekly tabloid is a lot like climbing a mountain, only to realize that once you've reached the summit, there, straight ahead, is yet another peak to scale.

So, please, in order to make this task somewhat easier for the editor, get all copy in by deadline, have all copy typewritten and double-spaced and be sure to include the author's name and phone numbers at home and at work.

Then, while the job of producing our beloved, beloved little Bulletin may still not be a piece of cake, it might become somewhat easier.

A bit like a chocolate chip cookie, perhaps.

A hearty welcome back to the Jewish Community Centre's delightful, informative and very well done Centrefold, edited by Estelle Melzer. For some time, Centrefold appeared as an insert in the OJB&R. We're pleased that they've come back to us and will appear, at least once a month, in our centre-section. Good to have you guys with us!

One of Israel's prominent young scientists, Prof. Gradus is a geographer specializing in regional and urban studies and is particularly concerned with the environmental and ecological implications of development in desert areas.

Widely known for his extensive participation in major international conferences, he is the author of several significant books in his field, including the first ever Atlas of the Negev, as well as for his varied research projects done under grants of major international foundations such as the Ford Foundation.

The meeting will be chaired by Susannah Dalfen, president of the Ottawa Branch of the Canadian Associates of the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev.

Strong supporter of Israel

Dr. Alan Lee Keyes delivering Negev Dinner keynote address

Noted Middle East authority, Dr. Alan Lee Keyes, will be keynote speaker at the 1989 JNF Negev Dinner honoring Norman Lesh on Tuesday, November 7 at the Chateau Laurier Hotel.

"Dr. Keyes is one of the most brilliant of the new generation of thinkers about politics and foreign policy," Dinner Chairman Daniel Kimmel said.

"With his understanding of the problems in the Middle East, he is well qualified to address issues that are of paramount importance to Israel and the work of the JNF with unsurpassed passion and eloquence."

Superb credentials

Armed with superb academic credentials, including a doctorate from Harvard, Dr. Keyes brings to bear the accrued practical insights of a global diplomatic career and intense domestic political experience.

As U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. Economic and Social Council from 1983-1985, Dr. Keyes gained renown for his strong support of Israel, and his effective battle against the infamous "Zionism is Racism" Campaign.

He was recently seen as a panelist in the controversial PBS television documentary Days of Rage.

The 1989 Negev Dinner will bring together prominent members of Ottawa's Jewish and non-Jewish communities to pay tribute to this year's honoree, Norman Lesh.

Newly designated forest

Funds raised from the campaign will purchase trees in the newly designated Norman Lesh Forest, to be located on the slope between the settlements of Michmanim and Kamon.

Organizers have set a goal of 100,000 trees.

For reservations or further information contact the JNF office at 230-9047.

The response for this year's Negev Dinner has been overwhelming. Seating is limited. To avoid disappointment, reservations should be made immediately.

Stand Up and Be Counted

By Vera Klein,
Chair, UJA Women's Division

After the September 7 Opener, many of you were so kind to call and tell me how much you enjoyed our Women's Division U.J.A. Opening Event, featuring Dr. Yaffa Eliach.

I am very proud of that lovely evening and to thank you, and acknowledge your participation and kind words, I would like to excerpt one vignette, from that night. I want to sincerely thank the community for giving me the opportunity to express myself.

The theme this year for Women's Division is The Power of One Voice, and I have told my friends on Cabinet that I will try and relate a different story each time I speak, in regard to this theme. One Voice, One Incident, One Issue can move you, mentor you, and inspire you for a lifetime.

His name was Eli...Eli Etsion...I met him on the U.J.A. mission on May 21st of this year. Our group was in the Golan Heights, visiting the soldiers on an Army Barracks. We were standing in one of the barracks, with Eli in the middle. One of our members said to him: "You know, most of us have never even seen a gun...let alone fired a shot from one..."

Eli looked at us all and said: "I Envy You". There was silence. What could one say after that? Three Powerful Words...words that moved me, and will haunt me forever...he was such a mature, wise young man, unfortunately...unfortunately, he had to be wise and mature at such an early age...while the 18 year olds that we know are deciding their future plans, Eli is doing mandatory army duty, and putting his life on the line, daily...he does not have the privilege of deciding his future plans. He probably had a nice boyhood; he's not having much of a teenagehood, and he may never have a manhood.

Later on we had lunch with the soldiers, and I managed to get Eli to sit beside me, though he was shy and very much on the defensive...He really wondered at our motives for being there in the first place, though deep down he revealed that he really did enjoy the contact with the outside world. He said once again, in his typically profound manner: "I am not here because I enjoy it, I am here because it is my Duty. I put my life on the line every day, and because I do, you all have a better life in the Diaspora because I am here defending my country and your country". Once again, silence.

On a lighter note, when we were leaving, I said to him: "I want to take a picture of you, and I'll send it to you". I kissed him goodbye, and he was so embarrassed...he said: "Actually, no one has done that to me in a long time...I used to have a girlfriend once, but I was away so much, she dumped me". I assured him he would have many more girlfriends, he was so special...

We left, and he waved to us, with a big smile on his face, triumphant that he had made some new friends.

"To Share Your Bread with the Hungry"

By Rabbi Irwin A. Tanenbaum
Temple Israel

We Jews do know how to celebrate. Sumptuous B'nai Mitzvah tables, wedding parties overflowing with luscious food of every description, anniversaries, bris, and namings provide ample opportunity to enjoy the plenitude that is ours to savour. Our festivals and holidays are made more joyous with the addition of foods specifically connected with individual sacred moments. Shabbat itself demands the Kiddush and Oneg. It is, said the sages, a blessing to celebrate.

But at least once yearly we suspend our eating routine to consider existence itself. Weeks have passed since our Yom Kippur fast. Our appetite is again sated; our hunger is no more. Even while we prayed that day we knew our small discomfort would soon be over. And so we could withstand the pangs of hunger and concentrate on "Teshuvah, Tefillah, Tzedakah" — "Repentance, Prayer, and Charity."

However for thousands in Canada hunger is not temporary. In our beautiful capital city the Food Bank must distribute about 2,300 kilograms (5,000 lbs.) of food, worth $10,000, daily to the poor; in Ottawa 21,000 children live below the poverty line (1981 census). One of every seven children in Toronto is hungry. Many come from working families whose income is below the poverty level. Others who "fast" regularly include the disabled, the immigrant and refugee, the homeless.

Some years ago, Leonard Fein, editor of Moment magazine, thought up a scheme to help alleviate the plight of "the poor, the widow, the orphan." His suggestion was to set aside a portion of happy celebration costs and designate this for the needy. MAZON was born. In 1986 the idea moved north and MAZON CANADA became a reality. It is fully independent from its parent organization and its activities are almost exclusively Canadian. The following is from their brochure.

"MAZON is a simple idea which can help Canada's Jews involve themselves in the struggle against hunger. It encourages those of us who are blessed with simchas, from b'nai mitzvah to weddings, anniversaries or birthdays, indeed, any occasion of joy, to voluntarily add a suggested tax of 3% to the cost of the celebration in order to help the hungry. It's less than it seems...to $2,000.00 add $60.00; to $5,000.00 add $150.00. The money collected will be allocated by MAZON CANADA to groups and agencies which are working to relieve hunger, both in the Jewish community and beyond. MAZON permits us to give focus to our traditional sense of community responsibility. When we eat, some of our bounty will be passed on to others. When we celebrate, some of our joy will be shared. Our simchas will thus become our collective mitzvah, and our signal that we are committed to help end the unnecessary evil of hunger in the midst of plenty. We are the people of the deed; this is our chance to act."

I am proud to report that the Temple Israel Social Action Committee has undertaken the MAZON CANADA concept and will be suggesting it to our members. We join many synagogues across Canada in accepting this challenge. Of course anyone can participate. MAZON CANADA is not connected to a particular "branch" of Judaism, nor does it necessarily involve a congregational response. It is connected, however, to the Jewish need to help others; it does involve a personal commitment.

"Is not this the fast I have chosen?
...To loose the fetters of wickedness
To undo the bands of the yoke?
Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry,
and that those bring the poor that are cast out to thy house?...
and if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry,
and satisfy the afflicted soul,
Then shall thy light rise in darkness..."
(Isalah 58, Yom Kippur Haftarah)

Are you planning a Simcha? Will you help?

From Soup to Nuts

By Donna Karlin

Over and over again, it is said that cheesecakes are the most sensational of desserts. There's something very special about cheesecakes; almost sinful because of their richness. Who can resist them? There are more kinds of cheesecakes than crumbs in their crusts. Everyone has their favourites. Here are mine.

Lemon Cheesecake

Crust:
1-1/3 cups graham cracker crumbs 1/3 cup butter, softened
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed

Filling:
750 g cream cheese, room temperature 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1-1/3 cups sugar 1 Tbsp. grated lemon peel
3 eggs, room temperature 2 tsp. vanilla

Topping:
2 cups sour cream 3 Tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla

Glaze:
3/4 cup water 1-1/2 Tbsp. cornstarch
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice 1/4 tsp. salt
1 egg yolk 1 Tbsp. butter
1/2 cup sugar 2 tsp. grated lemon peel

Crust: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter a 9" springform. Combine all ingredients in a small bowl. Press into bottom and sides of pan. Bake 5 minutes. Cool.

Filling: In mixer, beat cheese until soft. Gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs, 1 at a time, mixing well after each. Mix in lemon juice, lemon peel, and vanilla. Pour into crust. Bake about 40 minutes until slightly puffed. Maintain oven temperature.

Topping: Blend all ingredients in small bowl. Spread on top of cake. Bake 15 minutes. Topping will not look set. Cool 15 minutes. (Topping will set as it cools).

Glaze: Combine water, lemon juice and yolk in small saucepan. Stir in sugar, cornstarch and salt. Bring to a boil over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, about 10 minutes. Add butter and lemon peel and stir until butter melts. Cool glaze for 20 minutes. Spread over cake. Cool completely. Refrigerate until well chilled. (Can be prepared 2 days ahead). Garnish with thin lemon slices. Serve cold.

Caramelized Apple Cheesecake

Crust:
1 cup flour 2 Tbsp. sugar
1/2 cup unsalted butter, room temperature 2 egg yolks

Filling:
1-1/2 lbs. cream cheese, room temperature 3 eggs
3/4 cup sugar 1 Tbsp. finely grated orange peel
1 tsp. vanilla

Apples:
6 apples (preferably Golden Delicious) 2 Tbsp. unsalted butter
3/4 cup sugar

Topping:
1/2 cup flour 1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 cup sugar 1/3 cup unsalted butter
2 Tbsp. sifted icing sugar

Crust: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine flour with sugar in processor. Cut butter into pieces. Add to processor. Process until consistency of tiny peas. Add yolks and process using ON/OFF turns until dough forms a ball. Press into bottom of ungreased 9" or 10" springform pan. Bake 20 minutes. Cool.

Filling: Beat cheese with sugar in large bowl. Beat in eggs, orange peel and vanilla. Reserve. When crust has cooled slightly, pour in cheese mixture and return to oven for 45-55 minutes or until just set. Meanwhile, peel, core and slice the apples.

Apples: Melt butter in large skillet. Add sugar. Watch closely, let sugar brown. (Don't let it burn). Add apples, cook uncovered until tender, about 15-25 minutes. Reduce until mixture is quite thick, like chunky applesauce. Cool.

Topping: Combine flour, sugar and cinnamon in bowl. Cut in butter until crumbly. When cake comes out of oven, cool 10 minutes. Spread with apple mixture and sprinkle with topping. Place under broiler until browned. WATCHING CLOSELY (don't let it burn). Cool. Dust with icing sugar. Chill well before serving. Serves 10-12.

Cheesecake Tips

1. Make sure all ingredients are at room temperature before beginning.
2. Preheat oven 10-15 minutes before baking.
3. Be sure to follow directions carefully for baking and cooling.
4. Immediately after baking, run a sharp knife around cheesecake so that it doesn't stick to the sides of the pan and crack when cooling.
5. If cheesecake cracks (one without a topping), try sprinkling chopped nuts or coconut or grated chocolate on top. Graham cracker crumbs work well too (it depends on the flavour of cheesecake.) No one will ever know!

The story of Chana Senesh — *Hanna's WarOnce-only showing of powerful film Mon. Nov. 13

Six million Jewish men, women and children were exterminated by the Nazis during the Second World War.

In the summer of 1944 a million of these were cornered in Hungary, which had become an island of sanctuary for persecuted European Jewry.

But in 1944, Hungary was occupied by the Nazis and together with them marched the Eichman Death Machine. It had finally been decided that systematically, during the course of a few months, all these remaining Jews were to be deported and exterminated.

Palestine mission planned

During that summer of 1944, a Jewish parachutist mission emanating from Palestine was planned.

Originally thousands of Jewish parachutists were to have been dropped behind the enemy lines in occupied Europe in an attempt to prevent the holocaust.

Ultimately only 32 were all wed to leave and the relief mission to Hungary consisted of only six young people — five men and one girl, none of whom was over 25.

That girl was Chana Senesh. Born in Budapest in 1921, the daughter of Bela and Katherine Senesh, Chana grew up in a loving and cultured environment, educated and privileged.

With the advent of Hitler and the rise of anti-Semitism, Chana found that she had to choose between her homeland of Hungary and her emerging recognition of herself as a Jew.

She gave up her dream of being a writer and studying at the University of Budapest, and instead in 1939 enrolled in an agricultural college in Palestine.

Hard manual work

Intellectual by nature, she forced herself to undertake the hard manual work which was required of those Jews who wanted to create a homeland.

In 1944 Chana was approached by a fellow Hungarian living in Israel who invited her to join him and a group of volunteers, all from various German-occupied European countries.

These young Jews were being trained as commandos and spies by the British.

The commando's goal was to parachute into the mid-European war zone in order to organize escape routes for captured RAF pilots and to establish a network of resistance fighters against the inhuman acts of Hitler.

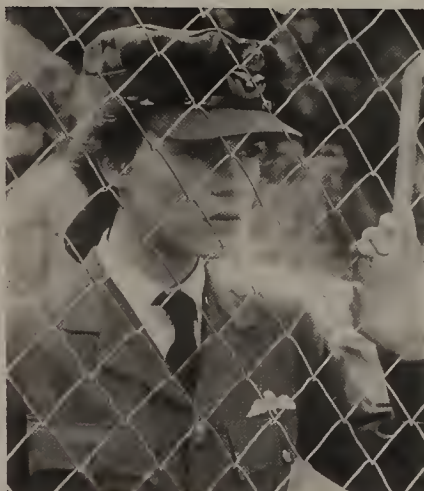

Assuming that she had found a way back to Budapest to help the 800,000 Jews who had sought refuge there, and also to save her mother who was left behind, Chana signed on.

After arduous training in Palestine, Chana and the group of commandos embarked for Europe.

Crossed into Hungary

Dressed as peasants, Chana and a companion crossed into Hungary near the town of Shiklos, where they bought tickets for the train ride to Budapest.

Suddenly surrounded by German soldiers, they realized that there was no escape. Chana's companion committed suicide. She was captured, arrested, and taken to Budapest where she was thrown into a black pit of a cell.

Hanna Senesh (actress Maruschka Detmers) after finishing her training as a paratrooper in the British Royal Air Force.

Chana sustained weeks of constant questioning and torture at the hands of the Hungarian Prison interrogator. Eventually, the unrelenting torture inflicted made Chana crack.

Suddenly surrounded by German soldiers, they realized there was no escape. Chana's companion committed suicide. She was captured, arrested and taken to Budapest where she was throw into a black pit of a cell.

While unbreakable in her refusal to give up the resistance "code", she made one mistake: she revealed her true name.

Immediately her mother was arrested. It was the interrogator's hope that with Katherine Senesh in the same prison, he could blackmail Chana into supplying the secret code.

Chana survived her sadistic treatment. With the Russian

Army at the gates of Budapest, the Germans stepped up plans to move Chana to Germany.

As she prepared to board the truck for her journey, the captain of the Hungarian State Security seized her from the German guards. He wanted Chana to stand trial in Hungary as a traitor.

In the chaotic situation that was Hungary in late 1944, Katherine Senesh was released from prison. When she learned of her daughter's impending trial, she hired a lawyer and tried to enlist support for Chana's defense.

The trial was held by a military court. Predictably, Chana was found guilty and executed just hours before the Russians liberated Budapest.

Chana Senesh

The life of Chana Senesh and her work as a resistance fighter demonstrates that, contrary to the popular belief that all Jews were passive victims in World War II, there were many people like Chana who sacrificed their lives while fighting back against Hitler's atrocities.

The story of Chana Senesh will be shown in film form, as Hanna's War on Monday night, November 13, at 8:00 p.m. at the Bytowne Cinema, 325 Rideau Street. Tickets are $10.00 and can be purchased at the Jewish Community Centre.

Board of Trustees apprised of decisions taken by Vaad exec.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa/Vaad Ha'Ir took place on Monday, September 27 in the Social Hall of the Jewish Community Centre.

A pre-meeting reception was held to introduce Ottawa's new communal professionals Neil Silvert, United Jewish Appeal director; Pauline E. Pankowski, UJA Women's Division director; and Aryeh Meir, director of planning.

Following submission of the minutes of the meeting of May 31, Vaad President Dr. Eli Rabin presented an award of recognition from the Council of Jewish Federations to Stephen Victor, immediate past president of the Vaad.

As per the constitution, the trustees convened the Annual General Meeting of the Jewish Community Campus. Outgoing President Lawrence Greenberg and his board of directors were thanked for their efforts over the past two years, and a new board of directors, headed by President Arnon Vered, was elected.

The trustees also approved the report of the Planning, Priorities and Budget Committee, detailing the requests of beneficiary agencies.

Dr. Rabin used the occasion to inform the meeting of the current situation regarding Soviet Jewry. While larger numbers than ever before are being allowed to emigrate, he said, these numbers are placing a strain on the transit points in Austria and Italy.

At present, Dr. Rabin noted, no one knows how the situation will develop.

However, he added, while there will be financial strains, it is hoped that those who wish to emigrate will be allowed to do so.

Other issues, including the status of the 1990 UJA campaign and community relations topics, were discussed.

The trustees were also addressed by Dr. Luis Roninger, 1989 Canada-Israel Foundation for Academic Exchange scholar.

Speaking about the prospects for peace in the Middle East,

Dr. Roninger said that at the core of any progress is the need to encourage commitment in mutual relations.

Only through these efforts, he said, can trust be increased.

The Board of Trustees comprises representatives of synagogues and organizations, beneficiary agencies, youth and the clergy. The Board of Trustees of 129 also includes 30 trustees-at-large, 10 of whom are elected each year for a period of three years.

The next meeting of the trustees is scheduled for October 25. The community is invited to attend.

Student arrested on misdemeanor charge

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (JTA) — The former president of the Jewish Student Union at State University of New York at Binghamton has been arrested and charged with two misdemeanor counts involving the vandalism of the JSU office last November.

James Oppenheim, 20, a senior from Bethpage, N.Y., was arrested by state police on Sept. 13 and charged with fourth degree criminal mischief and third degree false reporting of a crime.

Oppenheim had reported finding anti-Semitic graffiti spray-painted on the walls of the JSU office in November, alerting campus police after a campus rally commemorating the 50th anniversary of Kristallnacht.

Oppenheim has been unavailable for comment since his arrest, but continues to enjoy full student status on the campus, according to a university spokesman.

"The University feels it is important that the campus community supports due process," said Raymond Dye, vice president for student affairs. "This should not be an occasion for prejudging a person or a group. The student is innocent until proven otherwise."

No charges have been brought through the university's judicial system and, although Oppenheim reportedly has not appeared in any of his classes since his arrest, he remains "entitled to full participation in all aspects of university life," according to Dye.

The JSU office was defaced on Nov. 10, 1988, with spray-painted swastikas and the words "Kill Kikes." The words "Zionazi racists" were spray-painted across a wall bearing a 10-foot mural honoring Israel. Another swastika was painted over a Star of David on a third wall.

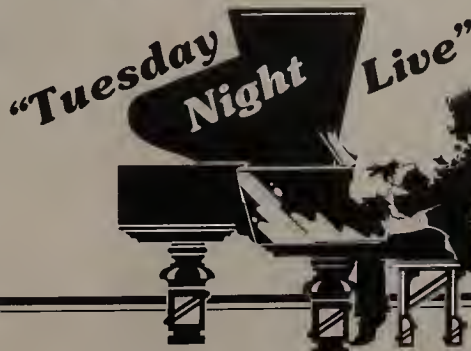

Oppenheim, characterized by some as an outspoken activist for the campus Jewish community and an ardent Zionist, responded to the discovery of the graffiti by organizing a vigil to condemn the vandalism.

The Jewish Community Centre is pleased to announce that Marie Stovicek has joined the management team of the Jewish Community Centre Child Development Unit, at 881 Broadview.

In her capacity as Director, Ms. Stovicek will be responsible for the operations of the Day Care Program, along with Lisa James.

A certified Early Childhood Educator with over 16 years of experience in the field, Marie has worked extensively with pre-schoolers as well as toddlers, and has taken charge of the various aspects of day care administration.

Wilson J. MacDonald

This collection of conversations and interviews between Haim Chertok and 18 well-known Israeli writers covers a five-year period in Israeli cultural and intellectual development.

The conversations and interviews began in 1983 and extended until 1988 and cover such diverse subjects as women in Israel, the Palestinian intifada, Diaspora, the Israeli literary community, contemporary Zionism and Judaism's cultural and religious faces.

The authors interviewed provide a general cross-section of Israeli writers. They include Aharon Appelfeld, T. Carmi, A.B. Yehoshua, Yehuda Amichai, Dan Pagis, Shulamith Hareven, Aryeh Liphshitz, Benjamin Tammuz, Asenath Petrie, Rivka Miriam, Amos Oz, Nathan Zach, Yitzhak Orpaz, Elazar (Larry) Freifeld, Yehoshua Kenaz, Haim Be'er, Yitzhak Ben-Mordechai and Yael Medini.

In We Are All Close, Chertok gives us an opportunity to glean insight into each writer's personality, their lives and experiences and in some instances a glimpse at their personal lives and interests.

Some of the conversations took place in the cosy atmosphere of the authors' homes while others took place in restaurants. In each case you feel that you are present and want to participate in the conversations.

This book provides an opportunity to become familiar with many of Israel's most prominent writers and poets who have, in many instances, diverse views on society, their fellow writers, politicians and the government. It is this diversity

The Day Care Program which is licensed by the Ministry of Community and Social Services, opened this fall. Gradually filling up, it has a capacity for 15 toddlers (age 18-30 months) and 24 pre-schoolers (age 2 1/2-5 years).

The Centre is open from 7:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and serves a homemade hot kosher lunch and two snacks. Full-time and part-time spaces are still available.

The newly renovated facility, designed by architect Peter C. Pivko, has received numerous compliments from parents, government officials, and educators. The program is stimulating and the staff is well qualified. Children can be spoken to in either English or Hebrew.

The Ministry of Community and Social Services provided close to $100,000 for the purchase of toys and equipment and to assist with the operational costs in the start-up phase.

Bob Chiarelli, M.P.P. for Ottawa West will be hosting an open house on Thursday, November 2 at 8:00 p.m. at the Jewish Community Centre Child Development Unit at 831 Broadview. Everyone is welcome to come and tour the facility and find out more about the program.

Everyone who reads We Are All Close will have his own favourite author. Mine was the conversation with 84-year-old Aryeh Liphshitz.

We Are All Close is very easy reading. Because it comprises 18 different short stories it can be read over a period of time without losing the continuity of the book. It is an unusual book, not only because of the format but also because of the intimate insight it provides of these Jewish authors.

When he finally arrived in Palestine he was forced to live for many years in a tent, in both summer and winter.

In his youth in Palestine he was a construction worker and later a stonemason, before becoming a writer. Many of the buildings he worked on in his youth are still standing today. He was truly a builder of the country as well as a prominent author.

Liphshitz speaks Arabic fluently and has worked with and known Arabs intimately for most of his lifetime. After having lived in Israel for 65 years he feels he has the solution to Israel's internal problems. It may or may not be a practical solution but he states it with such conviction that it requires some thoughtful consideration.

At the time of Liphshitz's interview in January 1986 he had just finished writing We Built Jerusalem, a collection of short stories. Chertok wrote a review of the book in Ariel in the spring of 1986. The circumstances under which Liphshitz read the review are both sad and yet

Panel of experts to examine bioethics at B & P meeting Nov. 9

The Business & Professional Group of UJA's Women's Division has assembled a panel of experts to provide information and a provocative perspective on 'Bioethics: Life and Death Issues' for the group's second dinner program of the season, Thursday, November 9, at the Embassy West Hotel, 1400 Carling Avenue.

The reception will begin at 5:15 p.m. followed by dinner at 6:15 p.m. The program will commence at 7:15 p.m.

Judith Miller, who will serve as panel moderator predicts discussion on a wide range of issues.

Designed as sampler

"The program is designed as a sampler on the subject," she says. "It will provide people with an introduction to some of the key areas in current bioethics concerns."

A geneticist by training, Miller is currently director of the National Council on Bioethics in Human Research. Actively involved in drafting, promoting, interpreting, and elaborating upon guidelines on ethical research with human subjects, she was secretary to a working group of Canada's Medical Research Council on the subject; and in 1967 she co-ordinated 'Towards an International Ethic for Research with Human Subjects,' a summit conference hosted in Canada by the prime minister.

Miller will be joined by three panelists: Robert Rupert, Benjamin Freedman and Joe Gilhooley.

Carleton University journalism professor Robert Rupert advocates the need for public input in ethical decision making.

Spearheaded efforts

A member of long standing on the Medical Research Council's committee on ethics and experimentation, he spearheaded successful efforts to switch the format of the committee's meetings from closed to open ones.

Rupert contends that bioethical concerns have to do with real, everyday public values and, as such, that there is a role for public involvement.

Benjamin Freedman is a philosopher whose scholarly writings on bioethics have been widely published and acclaimed.

Presently living in Montreal, he is a member of the McGill Centre for Medicine, Law and Ethics, looking at questions of infertility, informed consent, the treatment of AIDS patients, embryo research and clinical trials.

Acknowledged expertise

His acknowledged expertise in medical ethics as well as his keen interest in Jewish tradition have led him to an advisory role at Montreal's Jewish General Hospital.

Joe Gilhooley, the second philosopher on the panel, works at the Law Reform Commission, where he examines the relationship between law and ethics.

In the commission's Protection of Life project, questions of where to separate law and ethics and of where the two diverge come under his scrutiny.

He is particularly interested in probing the extent of our responsibility to future generations.

Survey the 'stuff'

Miller, Rupert, Freedman, and Gilhooley will survey the "stuff" of bioethics...life and death issues that individuals, families, and societies all must grapple with.

"Some people may have more questions about bioethics after the panel discussion than when they arrive that evening," moderator Miller predicts.

"I think that when they leave, though, they'll know how to pursue those questions actively."

The executive and the program co-ordinating committee of the UJA Women's Division Business and Professional Group invite members to attend this event. For further information or to reserve a place, call Geri Migicovsky (729-0333) or Pauline E. Pankowski (232-7306).

THE SAME OLD REFRAIN?...YES, IT'S THE SONG OF A PEOPLE.

Stephen Greenberg

As General Chairman of this year's campaign I would like to take this opportunity to update the community on the 1990 United Jewish Appeal.

Our objective this year is to raise $3,800,000; a 10% increase over last year. This number was arrived at in conjunction with the Long Range Campaign Planning Committee and after careful consideration of our agency's needs and requirements. This is not a whimsical figure casually picked out of the air, but a hard number required to fund our local agencies, to meet Israel's requirements and to meet the needs of Russian Jews. And, of course, we cannot confuse this financial requirement, which meets the day-to-day operating needs of our community, with a capital campaign which builds new facilities.

We all know and have heard before that our needs increase every year.

As donors, this refrain probably sounds monotonous to you. The simple fact though, is that the refrain is true. Locally, our community is growing so rapidly that the level of support to local agencies has been outstripped by that growth. The Jewish Social Services Agency, the schools, the Jewish Community Centre, Hillel Lodge and our other agencies simply cannot properly service the community, based on allocations from another era.

In Israel, a stagnant economy combined with the socio-political and economic implications of the intifada has generated an even greater need for the housing, medical, educational and welfare activities that the Jewish Agency funds.

What makes this campaign special is circumstances involving Russian Jewry. It is expected that 70,000 Soviet Jews will make an exodus from Russia this year. About 10,000 of these will go to Israel, where they will put pressure on the already very crowded absorption centres. In order to properly house the new immigrants and to make the prospect of Aliya more attractive, the Israeli government is anticipating spending close to $1 billion. This is a billion dollars that Israel just does not have today.

It is expected that as many as 1,200-1,500 Russian Jews will come to Canada. All Canadian Jewish communities will be sharing the burden of their support and the direct cost to the Canadian Jewish Community may be as high as $11 million.

The emigration of Russian Jews may continue for a number of years. Alternatively the window of opportunity provided by glasnost may be slammed shut any day. One thing is certain though, we must provide the support system that will enable the Russian emigres to make the transition to a democratic society. After having worked so hard on their release during the last 20 years, we cannot turn our backs on them now.

All of the above tasks require money. And that in turn requires an organized and comprehensive fund-raising campaign. In our community, as in virtually every Diaspora community, the United Jewish Appeal campaign represents the primary fund-raising vehicle for local, national and Israeli needs.

The money raised by U.J.A. assists us in educating our community, in looking after our elderly and in providing for our social welfare and cultural needs.

In Israel, U.J.A. dollars, amongst other things, assist in integrating new immigrants into Israeli society, building medical facilities in project renewal neighbourhoods or providing vocational assistance.

But most importantly the money raised in a successful U.J.A. campaign assists in ensuring that our Jewish community does not just survive but flourishes.

As of October 10, the 1990 campaign has raised close to $2,000,000. and on a card for card basis is running 11% ahead of last year. For those of you who have not made your pledge this year, please help us maintain this momentum. We cannot meet our community commitments without your support.

Chassidic Festival to close Arts Alive

The Israeli Chassidic Festival is back on tour! This is good news for its many Ottawa fans as it will be the closing event of Arts Alive '89 on Sunday, November 26 at Sir Robert Borden High School at 7:30 p.m.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the Israeli Chassidic Festival. In tribute to all those who made it happen, this year's show is the "best of the best". It includes old favorites, superb songs from past years, which for various reasons have been lost in time, and some of Israel's current hits. There will be the familiar, the favorites and songs which reflect Israel today.

In this special anniversary year, the Israeli Chassidic Festival also draws on the best of its creative artists. From Director Ofer Shafir, to Musical Director Miron Minster, to the performers, most have been members of past Festivals. Diversely talented, and reflective of Israel's society, the members of the Israel Chassidic Festival will involve you in their unique blend of Jewish tradition and Israeli excitement. The spirit is contagious!

Arts Alive, the Jewish Community Centre's annual Jewish book fair and cultural festival, will begin Saturday evening, November 25, at the Jewish Community Centre with an opening lecture by popular author and journalist Michele Landsberg. As well as our ever expanded selection of Judaica and works by Jewish authors, the weekend will feature a number of writers, a host of children's activities, and Israeli treats by the Dizengoff Cafe (run by the youth of Habonim Dror).

The entire community gets involved with over 4,000 participants. Synagogues, Sisterhoods and other Jewish organizations set up displays and sell Chanukah and Judaica gifts.

To volunteer or for more information, please call Arts Alive Chairman Donna Strauss at 526-4422 or Paula Speevak-Sladowski at the Jewish Community Centre, 232-7306.

It's 'Little Shop of Horrors'

Talented production crew is hard at work on 1990 teen play

Plans for the Jewish Community Centre Theatreworks' third theatre project are well underway. The 1990 production has been chosen — the wacky musical comedy, Little Shop of Horrors. Auditions for the teen cast members will be held on Sunday, November 5. (See ad in Centrefold).

No project of this scope, however, could take place without a dedicated and talented production crew at the helm.

The Jewish Community Centre would like to introduce the people "behind the curtain" who are busy working to make Little Shop another JCC Theatreworks hit.

Golda Feig, Producer

Golda, last year's production co-ordinator, is still waiting to be discovered by a famous Hollywood producer. In the meantime she is "climbing the theatre ladder," by offering to produce this year's play.

Although Golda has no acting experience, she loves the arts and theatre.

She has worked in the family property management business for a year, and finds working on the play a refreshing change of pace.

Bill Shenkman, Exec. Producer

Bill's main function as executive director is to make sure all the money needed for the play is raised. One of the reasons he offered to help with the play is that he is a closet musician, and plays a number of instruments.

Bill, a past president of the JCC, has been involved in Ottawa's Jewish community for some time. A native Ottawan, he is president of Shenkman Corporation, a large land developer and real estate investment firm.

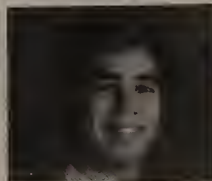

Jeff Kanter, Director

Jeff is an experienced hand at drama. A drama and English teacher, he has written, produced and directed numerous plays. The impressive list includes Grease, Diary of Anne Frank, and Woody Allen's Don't Drink the Water.

He has been involved with Camp B'nai Brith of Ottawa for 18 years, and was the head of Drama there for three years.

Peter Swedko, Ass. Director

Peter has been involved with the past two JCC Theatreworks productions, last year as co-director of Grease. He is a veteran actor, and fondly remembers his role in his very first play, You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, in grade 2. He played Woodstock No. 2.

He also played the role of Mr. Mushnik in Little Shop of Horrors at Camp B'nai Brith of Ottawa, where he has been involved in numerous productions and has been a drama staff member for two years.

Reflections from the President's Desk
By Ralph Kassie
President, Jewish Community Centre

Century 2 Ain't Century Village

(The Times They Are A-Changin')
The Jewish Community Centre Federation A.K.A. Jewish Welfare Board of North America is preparing for entry into its second century of service to its constituents. This landmark will be officially marked at its Biennial Convention in Washington, D.C. in April. The event has been dubbed "Century 2".

With this in mind, I thought that I would share a few concerns that the Centre movement is addressing on entering our second 100 years.

Changing times, values, and mores have dictated that community centres reach out to a very different and diverse population. For instance, were you aware that, in the U.S. today, nearly one in two marriages involving Jews is mixed? (Statistically, we are told that Canada seems to lag about a generation behind the States, so the figures here are not quite as disturbing at this time. This does not mean that we should be complacent). Only 13% of these involves a conversion of the non-Jewish mate. Encouragingly, nearly all these conversions produce Jewishly committed couples and offspring.

The remaining 87% of mixed marriages, for the most part, spell doom for any commitment or involvement in the Jewish community, by either spouses or their children. The Centre movement is making a particular effort to reach this significant group of people.

Their efforts have produced a modicum of success. Centres have discovered that people need to be needed, so they are actively seeking and soliciting participation from all sectors of Jewish life.

Hard to reach or unaffiliated youth are another Centre focus area into the future. Centres are becoming more sensitive to the new daily pressures of "life in the fast lane" which our youth are experiencing. They are endeavouring to come up with innovative ways to involve our youth in some sort of Jewish experience on a regular basis. Of course, the impetus to participate is fuelled by the encouragement of parents.

Centres have reinforced their mission statements, committing themselves to offering more Jewish content in their programming. Your Ottawa Centre, which has always had a strong Jewish focus, has counted itself in.

Speaking of commitment, have you heard about the chicken and the cow who walked by a restaurant which advertised a steak and eggs special? The chicken suggested they go in to check it out. The cow vehemently refused, stating that from the chicken they only wanted a donation, but from the cow they wanted a commitment.

Are we doing all we should to sustain our Jewish identity from generation to generation? The JCC has committed itself to this end. We hope you will become a partner in our effort.

See you and your family at the Centre!
Ralph

Planning meeting Nov. 1

JCC to develop programs for kids with learning disabilities

By Paula Speevak-Sadowski
Program Director,
Jewish Community Centre
Attention Deficit Disorder (Hyperactivity) ADD(H) is the term now being used to describe those whose difficulty concentrating and disruptive behavior can prevent them from learning in traditional settings and managing in group situations.

This was the topic of pediatrician Dr. William James's talk at the Jewish Community Centre's first Sunday Breakfast Club meeting. Dr. James talked about how to recognize "alert signs" in children which are characteristic of ADD(H).

The American Pediatric Society has recently revised its diagnostic criteria for ADD(H) to include the presence of eight or more of the following for at least 6 months, beginning before a child is seven years of age: fidgeting, difficulty sitting still, distractibility, difficulty taking turns, tendency to interrupt, failure to listen, difficulty following directions, failure to complete tasks, short attention span, excessive talking, carelessness and recklessness, inattentiveness, inability to keep quiet.

Dr. James emphasized the importance of early diagnosis and the team approach to treatment. Educators, physicians, parents, and the children have to get together to develop a plan that can be consistently followed in school and at home.

According to Dr. James, the most serious ramification of any form of learning disability is not poor academic achievement, but potential damage to the child's self-esteem and to the development of positive social relationships.

Several parents of children with learning disabilities have expressed great frustration and anger concerning their attempts to negotiate services with schools, doctors, and agencies. Parents shared stories of teachers labelling their children as lazy or immature and not exploring the possibility of the existence of a disorder.

The Jewish Community Centre is now faced with the challenge of developing programs for both ADD(H) children and parents. There appears to be a need for a social recreational program aimed at raising self-esteem, promoting positive peer interaction, and providing an opportunity for releasing pent-up energy. Parents may want workshops on coping with the demands of their parenting.

Judy Hoffman, who has both professional and personal experience with this topic, will be working with the Jewish Community Centre to develop programs in this area.

Parents and interested people are invited to attend a planning session on Wednesday, November 1 at the Jewish Community Campus, 881 Broadview, at 8:00 p.m.

For more information or to offer your ideas, please call Judy Hoffman at 828-2865 or Paula Speevak-Sadowski at 232-7306.

Connection 20/30's very successful Moveable Feast warmed up in the home of Mark Berlin.

'Moving' event hosted by Connection 20/30

By Diane Poriah,
JCC Adult Program
Co-ordinator

Over fifty people hopped a bus to take part in Connection 20/30's Moveable Feast on September 25.

The crowd assembled at the home of Mark Berlin and munched hors d'oeuvres and sipped wine while awaiting the first call of "all aboard". Animated conversation made the short ride to Lisa James' house seem even shorter. By the time everyone had enjoyed Lisa's delicious caesar salad, the bus was revving up its engine for the trip to Barhaven.

Sue Poteshin awaited the still-hungry hordes with creatively skewered kebabs. While she and a few brave friends stood outside in inclement weather to "man" the barbecue, the crowd inside devoured the results of their labours.

More was yet to come! It was close to the witching hour when the bus made the return trip to Mark Berlin's house for yummy desserts and coffee, and the party was still going strong. It was definitely an evening to remember.

Connection 20-30 is a social group for young Jewish adults, singles and couples, between the ages of 21-39. For more information or to receive Connection 20-30 mailings, please call Diane at the JCC, 232-7306.

Survey to aid long range planning

Centre will conduct feasibility study

The Jewish Community Centre has recently contracted the Toronto consulting firm, Lavenhol & Horwath, to conduct a feasibility study this fall and winter. The main purpose of the study is to define the social and cultural needs of our community and to develop a plan for meeting these needs.

Professional surveyors will be contacting a sample of our community and interviewing these people by telephone. This will provide the consultants with direct input from a cross-section of Ottawa Jewry.

Ralph Kassie, President of the Jewish Community Centre, believes that a comprehensive study of this nature will give the agency the vital tools for long range planning. Other members of the Centre's Study Team, who will be working with Lavenhol & Horwath on this project, and will be providing the architectural expertise. Peter's firm designed the Jewish Community Centre Child Development Unit which opened recently.

Peter C. Pevko has joined Lavenhol & Horwath on this project, and will be providing the architectural expertise. Peter's firm designed the Jewish Community Centre Child Development Unit which opened recently.

Funding for this study has been provided by the Provincial Ministry of Citizenship and Culture and the Ottawa Vaad Ha'Ir. We want your input and participation. For more information or to arrange a submission, please call Paula Speevak-Sadowski at 232-7306.

A baker's dozen of enthusiastic parents munched croissants and bagels, and listened to a talk by Dr. Bill James at the first JCC Sunday morning Breakfast Club.

JCC Breakfast Club a welcome Sunday break

By Diane Poriah
Co-ordinator,
Adult Programming

Dr. Bill James was the guest speaker at the JCC's first Sunday morning Breakfast Club on September 24. The Breakfast Club is a new program designed to ease the carpool doldrums of parents taking children to Sunday School at 881 Broadview. On the last Sunday of each month they can now stay and enjoy a bagel and coffee while listening to an interesting speaker. Response to the initial program was enthusiastic.

The next breakfast will be held on Sunday, October 29 at 9:30 a.m. in the cafeteria at 881 Broadview. The speaker will be Roslyn Postner who will explain and demonstrate techniques used in her course "The Technologies of Creating." (See article Creating on these pages).

Will speak Oct. 29

Creating is a learned skill claims Breakfast Club speaker

The second Sunday morning Breakfast Club will be held in the mini-gym at 881 Broadview on Sunday, October 29, from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Roslyn Postner.

Roslyn Postner has a background in both psychology and art. Her education includes a Master's Degree in Clinical Psychology from McGill University and numerous art courses. She has worked in both the mental health field and as an artist. Roslyn started and taught the first after school art classes at our Broadview Campus. She has also led art classes in the mental health field. Roslyn is a mother of two teenagers and currently works as a weight loss counsellor.

Roslyn Postner

Last year her interest in learning and personal growth led her to take a course called Technologies for Creating (developed by Robert Fritz, author of The Path of Least Resistance). Excited by its possibilities, Roslyn went to New York in January and trained as an instructor. Most people are surprised by the idea that creating is a skill that can be learned and applied in all areas of a person's life e.g. relationships, career, physical environment and health. Yet that is precisely what the course teaches. The same skills used by artists, musicians, and poets are taught so as to enable people to create a life of satisfaction and purpose.

Do you know what you want in your life? Do you have it? Why don't you have it? Join Roslyn on October 29 for an informative and enjoyable experience. Learn about creating in your own life.

New 831 Broadview facility

Early Childhood Development Unit moves to its own place

By Gale Greenberg
Junior Program Director,
The Junior Department's Early Childhood Development programs started the New Year in their new 831 Broadview location — a place of their own.

On Mondays and Wednesdays K'tan Tea takes place.
This playgroup, which emphasizes Jewish content, is for children 2-3 years old. For Rosh Hashanah, for example, kids made New Year's cards for their families. Daily activities include arts and crafts, song, stories, free play, sand and water play, gross motor activities and a kosher snack. Outside activities now take place in the new play yard complete with colourful climbing, sliding and riding equipment geared just for the preschool set.

On Tuesdays moms bring their tots (our current group range from 12-18 months) for a fun-filled morning of activities at Bagels n' Blocks. A speaker will be featured at times and will talk to the group informally over bagels and coffee. Topics are chosen by the moms themselves. The moms in our first session, for example, want to discuss various aspects of child development.

Fridays are for Shabbatots, a weekly playgroup for 2 and 3 year olds. Activities are similar to K'tan Ton but the theme is Shabbat.

The Child Development Unit
at 831 Broadview also includes the Jewish Community

Centre's beautiful new Day Care facility. For more information about any program in velopment Unit please call Rosa

THE JEWISH MEN'S SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Grounders to First

It's all over for 1989! And here are the winners.

Sandy Koufax Division:

Congratulations to the Bradson team who edged out the powerful and ever-pressing RON Engineering squad. Our fans were treated to one of the best playoff series in J.M.S.L. history. Hats off to Robert Greenberg, Harold Feder, Richard Herskovitch, Rick Labovitch, Robert Levitan, Mitch Palmer, Ralph Philosophie, Charles Schachnow, Dave Schlessinger, Fred Sella, Ian Shabinsky, Mark Shabinsky, Stan Wolfe and Joel Zagerman.

Hank Greenberg Division:

The all-star performance of Mastercraft left fielder Jeff Hochstadter, who almost single-handedly silenced the power hitting Levinson-Viner squad, and the pitching talent of Peter Fine, were just what the doctor ordered to help the Mastercraft team upset last year's Division Champions three games to two. Congratulations Simon Bitton, Rabbi Reuven Bulka, Shmuel Bulka, Daniel Fine, Peter Fine, Jeff Hochstadter, David Hoffman, Phil Karas, Perry Medico, Jeff Miller, Harry Presser, Harry Prizant, Franco Ronchi, Eric Schwartz, Phil Stein and Jerry Vreeswisk.

Goody Rosen Division:

What are Dancing Mermaids? They're this year's 1989 J.M.S.L. Division Champions, who fought back to win 3 games to 2 and defeat the strong and well-balanced Zagerman crew. Way to go, Syd Bernstein, Alan Cleiman, Jack Gould, Gary Greenberg, Stan Hart, David Kardish, Barry Mason, Ben Matchen, Mitch Miller, Howard Naglie, Geoff Fages, Zak Piotrkowski, Gordon Resnick, Sid Rothman, Eric Vernon, Phil Bronshter, Jim Merson and Les Turk.

Photos of all J.M.S.L. Champs are on page C7.

Strike Three

Congratulations to J.M.S.L. Executive Howard Osterer who was selected by Softball Ontario to umpire the Provincial Men's Ortbodox Championships. He was selected as one of the twelve to represent Ontario. His next step as a Level Four umpire will be to umpire a national or international competition next year!

Get the Licence of That Truck That Hit Me!

Sid Rothman (of Dancing Mermaid fame), a perpetual member of our walking wounded squad, was recently struck with a wicked line drive while on the pitching mound. He wobbled off, but was able to join his buddies, three innings later. Two games later, much to our amazement, Sid didn't walk off the field. This time, after a mean collision at second base, he was carried off by his mates under the guidance of team physician, Dr. Gary Greenberg. His only recorded comments at the Civic Hospital, where he was diagnosed as having a minor concussion, were, "What hit me? Did we win? All I remember was going to the game and waking up at the hospital." Well Sid, you did win and congratulations! P.S. Your car was raffled off to pay for new safety helmets so that future incidents would not end up in the same manner!

Long Distance Blues

Shmuel Bulka of Mastercraft fame wears his Division Championship sweater with pride at Yeshiva University in New York. In fact, although unable to participate in the Championships because of his school commitment, rumor has it that he never took his team sweater off while at his studies, during his team's playoff bid. His team effort worked. His many calls home were finally rewarded when he was told that Mastercraft won. We miss you, Shmuel, and good luck!

First Time Sponsor Wins Two Championships

Congratulations Carol and Moise Smith on sponsoring the Jewish Women's Softball League winners, Candy Wrappers, and the Jewish Men's Softball League Goody Rosen Division winners, Dancing Mermaids. Thank you!

Thank you, J.M.S.L. Sponsors

On behalf of all the 220 ballplayers this year we would like to express our appreciation to the following Jewish community leaders who helped sponsor our most successful J.M.S.L. year ever!

GAMES

By Greg Richards, JCC Phys. Ed. Director

The Fifth Annual International Maccabi Youth Games will take place in Detroit in August 1990. The 1988 Games attracted over 2,000 youth from 10 countries. It was an unforgettable experience for the youngsters who participated.

Under the guidance of the JCC, young athletes all over Ottawa are busy training for the Detroit Games. It's not too late for your teen, if he or she will be 13-16 by August 1990, to be part of the action. For more information call Greg at the JCC, 232-7306, ext. 47.

Our girls' volleyball program has attracted ten players so far. Coach Carol Rosenthal, a former provincial level player in Nova Scotia, is looking for a few more players with an interest in volleyball. The team meets every Monday, 4:30-5:30 p.m., at our Chapel Street gymnasium. Coach Rosenthal plans to enter the team in the City of Ottawa Intercity League. It promises to be an exciting experience. If you're between the ages of 13-16, and have some volleyball skills, just show up, any Monday afternoon.

Our boys basketball program started off strong, with over 18 players showing up for practice. Tom Cholak, a former Carleton University star, has agreed to work with the squad as coach. Plans include forming a house league to provide opportunities for our younger players to develop game skills. (See the ad re teen basketball league on Centrefold pages).

Our individual athletes are working harder than ever. Some are fresh off their experiences at the '89 Maccabiah Games in Israel. Alan Azuelos, Lianne Liang and Alana Safran were selected to the Canadian junior team. All three are now training towards the 1990 Detroit Maccabi Youth Games.

Chess and golf are two new events at these Games. Any players out there in either of these sports, who will be between the ages of 13-16 as of August 1, 1990, and are interested in the Youth Games, should please call the JCC Phys. Ed. Department at 232-7306, ext. 47.

Please Note: An information session on Maccabi '90 will take place on Sunday, November 5 at 1:00 p.m. at the JCC, 151 Chapel Street.

FIT FACTS by Greg Richards

As the hot days of summer fade away, many of us tend to decrease our activity levels. Here are a few suggestions to help maintain your fitness level.

1) Sports. Look around for a winter sport you like. Skating, cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, are all excellent activities that can be easily learned.

2) Walking. Sunny winter days are great for hikes. Try the Gatineaus, or find an area of town you would like to learn about...and go for it.

3) The two-minute workout. Combine your walking program with a 2-7 minute stretching and muscular strengthening program. You'd be surprised at what you can accomplish in 5 minutes, if you do it regularly. Here are the basics of a 5-minute program.

30 seconds: Reach both arms overhead as high as you can. Hold 15 seconds, then repeat.

30 seconds: Move feet to wider than shoulder width, slowly circle body from waist, left then right. Do five times each side.

Sports Spotlight on

Ottawa Jewish Sports Hall of Fame
Sid Addelman and Percy Addelman

By Greg Richards

This month's "Spotlight" focuses upon the father-son combination of Sid and Percy Addelman.

Percy Addelman

Percy is, without a doubt, one of the original founders of sports in the Ottawa Jewish Community. Percy began his baseball playing career in 1925 when the league was comprised of 3 teams, the Sandy Hills, the Tigers, and the Granites. The game at that time was baseball, not softball, and Percy was a pitcher on the Sandy Hills. (His catcher at the time was the late Dr. Jack Feller.)

The boys played at York Street School diamond. Few of them wore gloves and most wore baseball uniforms only through the financial support of merchants such as Mac Abrams, Max "Mike" Baker, Izzy Shore, and Barney Weiss. But the games were competitive, and each match would attract over 200 spectators!

By 1960, the league had grown to include teams from all over Ottawa. It was now called the Jewish Boys Softball League (JBLS), and Percy, at the age of 50, decided to leave the playing to younger men. But he continued to help these younger players by coaching, umpiring and organizing leagues and tournaments within the Jewish community. Percy is still active in the community and is always willing to assist with JCC programming whenever needed.

Sid Addelman

One of these youngsters influenced by Percy was his own son, Sid Addelman. Sid began playing in the JBLS in 1948, at the age of 16. In 1949, his team, under the guidance of manager Joe Osterer won the league championship.

Sid was also a baseball player of note, playing in the tough Mercantile League for St. Anthony's, and in the YMCA League in 1949-50. During the same time period, he took up basketball and football at Lisgar Collegiate. He was voted captain of the basketball team, and was selected to represent Ottawa in football at the Red Feather Tournament, an annual tournament of the era, bringing together the best football teams from across Canada.

As a student at Carleton University, Sid was a dominant player on the Ravens' basketball teams during the early 1950s. Using his height and natural athletic ability, Sid often led the league in scoring, winning the Doug Banton Memorial Trophy for league M.V.P. in the 1953-54 season.

During his stay at Carleton, Sid discovered table tennis, and quickly mastered the game to reign as table tennis champion for two years.

After graduating from Carleton in 1954, Sid continued his studies at the University of Delaware where he discovered volleyball. He was a pivotal player on the school's team, travelling to various tournaments in New York and Philadelphia. He also found time to participate in tennis, squash, racquetball and bowling (in which he averaged 180). As a professor of statistics in Buffalo, New York, he helped to organize little league baseball, junior football and ponytail baseball. He took an active interest in helping youth develop through sport — much as his father Percy, did before him.

Although this is a Sports Spotlight column, it would be remiss not to mention the academic achievements of this remarkable man. While pursuing an active career in sports, Sid completed a Masters Degree in Mathematics at the University of Delaware, and a Ph.D. in Statistics at the University of Iowa. He was a full professor of statistics at the State University, New York, and Chairman of the Department of Statistics. In 1968, he was elected a "Fellow" of the American Statistical Association (A.S.A.) and served as Editor of the A.S.A. Journal for many years.

Tragically Sid lost his battle with cancer in 1979. But he left behind a legacy of achievement of which his family, and indeed, the entire Ottawa Jewish community, can be proud.

Youth leaders polish skills at Teen Summit

By Pamela Ticker
Teen Co-ordinator,
Jewish Community Centre

Teen Summit is an annual event organized by the Jewish Community Centre at the start of each program year to help teen youth group leaders develop needed skills.

Leadership information

Teen Summit this year took place on September 23 and 24 at 831 Broadview in the new teen lounge. The summit was geared towards teens belonging to the following youth groups: Habonim Dror, Teen Scene, U.S.Y., B'nai Brith Youth Organization, and F.R.O.S.T.Y. The weekend was designed to provide information to the teens that would enhance the performance of their respective youth groups.

An impressive line-up of speakers addressed different topics. M.P. Herb Grey attended the Summit and spoke to the teens about running meetings according to parliamentary procedure. Marketing consultant Ian Sadinsky discussed publicity and membership recruitment. Joan Stafford, an instructor in leadership skills at Concordia University in Montreal, presented information on group leadership skills, using role playing and examples. David Walzer from the Israeli Embassy spoke with the teens about what they as Canadians can do for Israel. Finally Carol Kassie, one of the Jewish Community Centre's dedicated board members, gave an inspiring talk about membership retention.

Enjoyable and beneficial

Teens who attended reported that Teen Summit '89 was enjoyable and beneficial — and they are looking forward to another one next year.

Twins had a great time getting together.

All eyes were on Ballini, the Great Fake Juggling Clown.

Juggling and limbo livened up Centre's first tween program

By Pamela Ticker
Teen Co-ordinator,
Jewish Community Centre

A good time was had by all who attended the Jewish Community Centre's first Tween program of the year, which took place on October 7 at the new teen lounge at 831 Broadview.

There was music, snacks and a non-alcoholic bar. Tweens between the ages of 10 and 12 enjoyed learning to limbo. A great juggler, Stephen Bell (also known as Ballini, the Great Fake Juggling Clown) provided a special touch to the evening, as he demonstrated juggling tricks and unicycle rides. He also asked for audience participation, something which the kids really enjoyed. Everyone expressed interest in future tween programs in the future.

During the evening, older teens belonging to the B'nai Brith Youth Organization (B.B.Y.O.) attended the program and spoke to the tweens about Teen Connection, an introduction to B.B.Y.O. life for kids in grade 7 and 8, which offers a variety of social and athletic activities, plus social action and community service programs.

Parents and tweens will soon be receiving letters and brochures with more details about Teen Connection. Interested parents or kids who want to join should call Pamela Ticker at the Jewish Community Centre, 232-7306.

New Multiples fashions will be featured at teen beauty fair

By Estelle Melzer

Ottawa teens will get an exclusive look at a unique new fashion line called Multiples, at the fashion show which will highlight the Jewish Community Centre's first teen beauty and health fair. The fair, called Images of You, will take place on Tuesday, November 7 at 7:00 p.m. at the Jewish Community Campus, 881 Broadview (see ad on these pages). Tickets for the fair are $5.00, available at the door.

Multiples is a new concept in fashion dressing which is sweeping the U.S. It's clothing that fits the modern lifestyle — comfortable, multi-functional, multi-seasonal, easy care, good looking no matter what one's size or shape — and affordable. It sounds like a teen's dream wardrobe! The system is sold exclusively by Wendy Hadad, owner of By Wendy. It is made up of modular, one-size-fits-all pieces, which can be mixed, matched, layered, tucked, rolled and accessorized into endless combinations and lengths. For example, a simple "tube" can serve as a turtle-neck, cowl, belt, hood or, in the summer, a halter top. The possibilities of each of the pieces are limited only by one's imagination.

Wendy, whose hand-painted creations are well-known in Ottawa, also offers individualized hand-painting and beading as an option on her Multiples line.

Wendy also now offers Multiples for kids. What works for the older teen makes just as much sense for the tween. These fashions fit all shapes of kids and, with a one size design for sizes 7-14, will keep on fitting and looking good for years. For more information about Multiples please call Wendy at 723-5529.

Better yet, come to the Jewish Community Centre's Teen Beauty Fair and see for yourself. Wendy Hadad's Multiples will be modelled by our own teens along with fashions from Benetton, Classy and Tiffany's. Don't miss a great fashion event — by teens and for teens.

Hungary's Jews keep a wary eye out for less positive developments

By Ruth E. Gruber
BUDAPEST (ITA) — The story of the Jews in Hungary is one of tragedy and renewal.

If anything can be considered certain, it's the fact that things change.

Today, in the midst of an unprecedented postwar revival, partly fostered by the sweeping social and political liberalizations throughout the Hungarian system, Jews — like other Hungarians — are keeping a wary eye out for future, less positive, developments.

Despite Hungary's newly reformed diplomatic links with Israel, despite the renaissance of interest in Jewish life and education, despite a new government policy which guarantees religious freedom, many people are concerned both that the Hungarian reforms could fail, and that anti-Semitism could begin again to flourish.

"This is a country in the midst of crisis," Deputy Social Services Minister Istvan Barfalvy said in Budapest last month, at the opening of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee's first East European office.

"In a country where there is social and economic hardship, xenophobia could increase," he said. "We all know what tragedy this brings to communities exposed to prejudice." Said a Hungarian-born journalist: "The Hungarian government is all for the Jews; the Hungarian people, no."

These concerns were echoed two weeks later at a seminar in Vienna on anti-Semitism in Hungary. The seminar was told of a boom in Jewish education, Jewish children's camps, direct flights between Budapest and Tel Aviv, Jewish Cultural Association activities, the popular Hungary-Israel Friendship Society and other aspects of Jewish renewal.

But it also heard that only a relatively small fraction of Hungary's 80,000 Jews actually take active part in Jewish life: most are fully assimilated.

"Hungarian Jewish life did not die, but it is very different now and not too strong," Budapest Professor Tibor Engländer told the seminar.

"Both over-pessimism and over-optimism have to be criticized," he said.

"Years ago, many Jews thought anti-Semitism had died, now many think it is reborn," he said.

Wearing new mask

"Anti-Semitism is wearing a mask. We have to recognize the mask and recognize who is wearing it."

Engländer said there were two big illusions about anti-Semitism among Hungarian Jews and "both are very dangerous."

One was that "the old Communist regime would save us from rightist anti-Semitism. The second is that a new democracy would save us from Communist anti-Semitism."

In fact, some Hungarians say that as Jews have become more and more open about their Jewish identity, overt anti-Semitism has also grown.

One faction of the largest opposition party, the Democratic Forum, has been accused of being anti-Semitic, in part because its political roots are nationalistic, rural, populist and steeped in Christian beliefs.

Daniel Lanyi, an activist at the Democratic Forum headquarters in Budapest, denied the party was anti-Semitic per se.

"Some of our members are first generation intellectuals with a rural background," he said.

"There probably are people in the Democratic Forum who are anti-Semitic," he said, "but it's very difficult to trace back."

"The politics of the Forum are very tolerant. I reject the allegation that the Democratic Forum is anti-Semitic. There might be people in it who are, but its broad politics are not."

Six women recipients

UJA acknowledges generous pledges with special pins

"On my last day as national chairman of Women's Division of the United States," Bobi Klotz says, "my Lion of Judah pin fell apart."

"First the hook came off, then the little fastener."

"My daughter looked at me and said: 'Mom it's telling you to quit!'"

It would be very hard for Bobi Klotz to quit. Klotz was in Ottawa recently to address the Leadership Brunch of U.J.A.'s Women's Division.

The trip was one of many she takes annually on behalf of the Women's Division, Project Renewal and the Jewish Agency.

Frequently, she travels as many as 200 days a year raising money, raising awareness, and expanding the leadership base.

She has been doing it selflessly for the past 15 years as a volunteer whose dedication, ability, and great personal charisma have become well known to Jews around the continent.

During her visit to Ottawa, she conducted a seminar at a Women's Division cabinet meeting and then spoke to 46 women at the leadership brunch held on September 24 at the home of Elissa Iny.

The brunch was also a celebration for six Ottawa women who have reached a special level of leadership.

Three of them, Susannah Dalfen, Elissa Iny, and Vera Klein, were awarded the "Lion of Judah" pins, which signify a donation of $5000 per year to the United Jewish Appeal.

Rima Aristocrat, Linda Nadolny-Cogan, and Natalie Stern were awarded Pomegranate Pins, acknowledging a yearly donation of $2500.

In addition, 13 women joined leadership ranks by increasing their pledges to $1000. The Leadership Brunch was organized by Ruth Berger, Susannah Dalfen, Barbara Slipacoff, Women's Division Chair Vera Klein, and Pauline E. Pankowski, Women's Division Director.

Natalie Stern and Rima Aristocrat, recipients of the Pomegranate pins. Recipient Linda Nadolny-Cogan was not available at photo time.

Elissa Iny, Vera Klein and Susannah Dalfen, 1990 recipients of the Lion of Judah pins, with Women's Division National Chairman Bobi Klotz.

Two generations of Lion of Judah pins recipients: Vera Klein and her mother Lenke Grossman; Bess Greenberg and her daughter Elissa Iny.

Kids, parents share delightful time at Jewish Children's Expo

By Deborah Friedman
Children and their parents enjoyed a rare treat recently when a Jewish Children's Expo was presented at the Centrepointe Theatre in Nepean.

The event was sponsored by the Jewish Youth Library of Ottawa.

The afternoon consisted of two concerts and a long intermission during which visitors toured a wide range of booths in the atrium. The exhibits were very broad in scope.

As well, there were crafts for the children to do from making shabbos candles, decorating a kippah, braiding challah, asking a rabbi any question, or making a kosher place mat.

Visitors could observe a scribe at work or investigate a display of kosher products. Children's books and Judaica were for sale.

One of the most popular

displays was a cow (kept outside!) and two sheep. The children were invited to milk the cow. Also popular was a face painting booth.

The first concert featured the New York based performers, Uncle Moishe and Mitzvah Men. The group staged a lively show which was well received by an enthusiastic audience of almost 500.

The closing concert featured

Moshe Yess who is also well known to the Jewish audience in Ottawa. Yess sang an interesting assortment of songs and accompanied himself on the guitar.

The participants seemed to have a wonderful time. The warm and friendly atmosphere was enhanced by the attractive surroundings as old and young mingled.

Being held at Skyline Hotel

Israelis, Palestinians taking part in local Nov. conference

By Gabriella Goliger

Prominent Israelis and Palestinians will be in Ottawa November 9 and 10 to participate in a conference called "Seeking Peace in the Middle East" at the Skyline Hotel.

Coming from Israel are Yehoshafat Harkabi, former Chief of Military Intelligence in the Israeli Defense Forces and Mordechai Bar-On, who was personal assistant to Moshe Dayan and, more recently, a member of Knesset (Ratz).

Their Palestinian counterparts will be Dr. Nabil Sha'ath, Chairman of the Political Committee of the Palestinian National Council and Faisal Hussein, an influential West Bank leader.

All four are well-known "doves" in their respective societies and work from the premise that both Israeli and Palestinian nations must recognize each other and acknowledge the other's right to national self-determination.

The context for the conference is the ongoing Palestinian uprising in the West Bank and Gaza, which has once again focused world attention on the Middle East.

The intifada has also made

Yehoshafat Harkabi

many Canadians view the status quo in the region as untenable and unacceptable.

Efforts made

In recent months, various parties to the conflict have made efforts to resolve the crisis and launch a peace process. The conference speakers will discuss these efforts and their perceptions of the common ground shared by Zionist and Palestinian moderates.

In addition to Israeli and Palestinian participants, the conference will feature other experts and activists on Middle East issues, including: Milton Harris, former president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Professor Elias Zureik, Robert Stanfield, James Johan, a UN official, and Stephen Cohen, a former director of the Bronfman Foundation.

The objectives of the two-day conference are: to encourage and facilitate dialogue among Middle East experts/activists, to involve Canadians in the discussion of current opportunities for peace and to promote better understanding of the role of the international community in facilitating a peace process.

The event is being sponsored by the United Nations Association of Canada (main sponsor), Canadian Friends of Peace Now, the National Council on Canadian-Arab Relations and the Near East Cultural Foundation.

The cost of the conference (including three meals) is $75. The charge for the November 9 banquet only is $35. (Banquet speakers will be Yehoshafat Harkabi and Nabil Sha'ath.)

For more information on the event and tickets, call Simon Rosenblum at 563-0757.

Israel not likely to extradite national wanted by Colombians

By Hugh Orgel

TEL AVIV, Sept. 21 (JTA) — An Israeli soldier of fortune wanted by the Colombian authorities is not likely to be handed over by Israel.

But his future movements around the world may be greatly curtailed if Columbia obtains an international arrest warrant for Yair Klein, an Israel Defense Force reserve lieutenant colonel.

At the moment, Klein, who is president of Hod Hahanit, a firm that specializes in exporting military equipment and know-how, is under investigation by the Israeli police.

The police are trying to determine whether he and his associates — all IDF reservists — did business in Colombia without obtaining the requisite licenses from the Defense Ministry.

Cohen says he trained security guards for Colombian ranchers and farmers, for which he did need to be licensed, but the Colombians are accusing him of training assassination squads for the drug cartel.

Charged with conspiracy

The Department of Administrative Security in Bogota said Klein has been charged there with criminal conspiracy and was being sought for extradition along with another Israeli, Arik Acek.

But Columbia has no extradition treaty with Israel, and the Israeli police charge that the Colombian police have ignored their repeated requests for information that could help their investigation of Klein. For that reason, they say, the investigation is confined to possible license violations, not drug-related charges.

If Columbia obtains an international arrest warrant, Klein could face arrest if he sets foot in any country that has an extradition treaty with Columbia.

YOU HELPED TO LET OUR PEOPLE GO. NOW HELP TO LET THEM STAY.

Since the 1970's, your support and purchase of State of Israel Bonds has helped to successfully settle more than 200,000 Russian Jews in Israel. Now, the gates out of the Soviet Union have been re-opened a little wider for Jews who want to emigrate.

By continuing to purchase State of Israel Bonds, you help Israel provide jobs and housing for our Soviet brethren. This year, buy another State of Israel Bond... and help to let them stay.

'There is a price to pay if writer wants a large public'

Naim Kattan, author of 17 books, essays, short stories, novels and literary criticisms, and also the head of the Writing and Publications Section of the Canada Council, hosted the 18th literary session of the P.E.N. Congress in Montreal with panelists, Anne Hébert (Canada), Lise Gauvin (Canada), Peter Schneider (Germany), Moussa Konate (Mali) and M. Jaki Seroke (South Africa: in absentia).

Insidious censorship

Kattan began by speaking about writers in prison who cannot publish on an official basis for political reasons, but he quickly turned to other perspectives, what he called "insidious censorship, either social, political or moral."

He spoke passionately of the marketing of one's work in the western world: "The writer has become something that can be bought and sold."

He continued, "There is a price to pay if you want a large public. Is this price too high? It is bringing on censorship itself? Does a writer have free access to his public? This is a different side of the coin; different from imprisonments and resulting repression."

Frightening story

Peter Schneider (West Germany), political journalist, essayist and novelist, whose novel, The Wall Jumper (1983) focuses on the Berlin Wall as literal and metaphorical symbol of opposition to borders spoke of the most interesting — and frightening — publishing story during the week-long P.E.N. conference.

In 1985 he had read an article in a gazette about the son of Mengele only meeting his father when he was almost 20.

"The son of Mengele had been very close to me in my youth. We went to school together. I felt compelled to create a fiction around the story of their meeting in Argentina when the son was an adult, meeting his father for the first time. Part of the story was invented, but I could not invent Mengele. I even used his name."

In the battle which ensued to publish his short novel, entitled That Man Out There (only about 80 pages), he admits he quoted material from about two pages in the gazette in which he first read of the son's

Israelis stay cheaper

Hotel prices falling

Prices of recommended hotels in Israel will be reduced by between 10% and 25% as of this fall.

The dramatic agreement to this effect was reached and signed recently in Tel Aviv between the Minister of Tourism Gideon Patt, and the Israel Hotel Association.

The agreement thus avoids the need for Minister Patt to sign regulations enforcing price controls of the hotel industry.

The accord fixes the maximum prices for hotel rooms meeting with his father.

He was accused of plagiarism, told he had to pay the gazette for each book printed because it contained approximately two pages lifted from that gazette.

The magazine even threatened to sue him: if the book was published.

Schneider reflects: "Getting in touch with the publisher of this gazette was both fascinating and terrifying. I told them I could not afford to pay them in advance, but if I became rich from the publication of the novella I would be happy to pay them something."

Still, I asked why I must pay for something for which I was not guilty? The way I overcame the problem is I argued that the material with which a fiction writer must work has to remain in touch with reality."

Did not sue

The gazette decided not to sue Peter Schneider, who closed with the remarks: "We need new copyright laws to cover this kind of documentary fiction."

Anne Hébert (Canada) spoke of the quest for freedom that every writer struggles to achieve. "All our lives we search for freedom, it is an absolute which we will never attain, but it exists for us when we strive for it."

Lise Gauvin spoke of what it means to respect the freedom of the work and the freedom of the critic. "Total censorship equals non-respect; this is excessive and scandalous. Literature commands its own self-respect. By its very nature it is subversive because it involves the free search of words."

Length of time

Moussa Konate (Mali) spoke of the length of time it took him to get his work published, not in his own country, but France — six years from the time of writing to the time of publication.

"We automatically go to Paris because we write in French, but our writing does not interest the French audience, who is trying to ghettoize African literature," he said.

Moderator Naim Kattan summed up the comments of the panelists: "I hope the Peter Schneider's legal battle is not a wave for the future. Anne Hebert has spoken of the search for freedom through writing. Lise Gauvin of the subversive nature of literature and Moussa Konate of the struggle to define one's audience for oneself.

"Literature cannot be reduced to a common denominator; it must be magnified and anonymous, personalized at the same time as it is ?????"

Naim Kattan will deliver the Hy Hochberg Memorial Lecture on Sunday, November 26th. Jewish book month sees the publication of a new novel by Kattan, La Fortune du Passager.

Items already acquired for the exhibit include, left to right: household iron; laundry soap marketed for Jewish consumers by Procter and Gamble; copper pot and ladle, made in Eastern Europe and owned by the great-grandmother of a staff member at the Museum of Jewish Heritage; framed photograph; eyeglasses; and English for Coming Citizens by H.H. Goldberg, a book written both to help immigrants learn English and to cope with everyday situations in their new home. All items were in use on the Lower East Side during the period of the great Jewish immigration to the United States. Photo credit: Peter Goldberg/Museum of Jewish Heritage.

N.Y. Lower East Side tenement apartment recreated by museum

Piece by piece, and board by board, the staff of A Living Memorial to the Holocaust-Museum of Jewish Heritage is assembling an authentic Lower East Side tenement apartment of the early 20th century.

Ceiling fixtures, wall panelling, copper cooking pots, family portraits, and a mezuzah, all dating from the era of the great wave of Jewish immigration, are but a few of the items already acquired for this unique exhibit.

A Living Memorial to the Holocaust-Museum of Jewish Heritage is scheduled to open to the public in 1992.

The tenement apartment will be installed as part of the Museum's permanent exhibition on Jewish immigration to and settlement in the United States, one of four major themes to be addressed by the Museum.

"The community of New York's Lower East Side," Dr. David Altschuler, director of the Museum said, "was the largest and most significant Jewish immigrant presence in the United States, and its heritage has remained precious to both its former inhabitants and to their descendants."

"The Museum's tenement apartment will provide a true sense of the life of that time," he added.

The basic architectural components of the apartment, including the window frames, ceiling fixtures, molding, floor boards and the sink and bathtub, have all been recovered from an 1898 building, still standing at Avenue A and East 2nd Street in New York City.

Steven Satterwhite, the building's landlord, has donated these items to the Museum.

The completed apartment on exhibit will be furnished, with authentic artifacts, to replicate a typical Jewish household of the early 20th century.

To help determine appropriate furnishings for the apartment, Museum staff have researched extensively through period literature and periodicals, and through the photo archives of the Children's Aid Society, at Columbia University's Rare Book and Manuscript Library, the New York Public Library, the New York Historical Society and the Museum of the City of New York.

Surprisingly, "scene of the crime" photos from the New York City Police Museum have proven a particularly rich source of information.

While photographing murder victims of the period, police photographers captured, in great detail, domestic interiors as well.

Specific artifacts

Among the specific artifacts collected to date are a mezuzah, a Yiddish-English dictionary, an iron, a bedspread, copper cooking pots, eyeglasses, P and G laundry soap, and family portraits in their original frames.

These artifacts have been donated to the Museum by private individuals and a trade association, and all were owned and/or used by residents of the Lower East Side at the turn of the century.

A Living Memorial to the Holocaust-Museum of Jewish Heritage is being created under the auspices of the New York Holocaust Memorial Commission, and will be constructed in Battery Park City, on the Manhattan shoreline opposite the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island.

With a central programmatic focus on public education, the Museum will address four main themes: The World Before, The Holocaust, The Aftermath, the Jewish Immigration to the United States.

Its completed facilities will encompass permanent and temporary exhibition galleries, a computerized interactive Learning Center, a memorial chamber, an auditorium, an education wing, a sculpture terrace, museum shop, dining facility and administrative offices and workshops.

The Museum, New York's principal memorial to the six million Jews murdered during the Holocaust, is expected to attract more than 500,000 visitors annually.
